

Salute to Health Care Workers

COVID has taken a dire toll on all people who are in contact with those with health care needs – hospital staff, home health workers, first responders, and others. Health care workers are having to deal with stress while working hard to care for others. They have been in the COVID trenches for a long.

Let us help them as best we can. This includes letting them know we care. When asked “What can we do for you?”, often the response was “A note or a card saying you support us would be wonderful. It would help.”

Let us do more. Choose a group of workers in the health care industry (First Responders, Home Care Workers, Hospital Staff, Doctors’ Offices, Nursing Homes, etc. and make contact to obtain information to determine what you will chose to do for them. Do it, and please share the experience.

Thank You, Health Care Front-Liners
